But this sheet comes from the press, it is not unlikely that the guns gay be sounding the first grapple with the traitors around Fort Sunter. The solemn justice of the conflict now begun, is written in every day a sistery since the staveholder's rebellion was imagurated last December. Through what humilation and outrage the flag of our c untry has been dragged, during these four menths, we need not tell save. The curses that have been rained upon Floyd and Buchanan—the heart aches that have gone to millione of loyal breasts—the despair that settled upon the whole country—the large contempt.

The large number of promine and the light of the office, will be found in another any without disparagement to other can didates (if there be others) that Mr. Hough is eminently fitted to discharge the duties of the office, and eminently deserving of the voice of the Republicans of Northern Piticols. There may be other, candidates to whom these remarks will apply with squal justice. We know Mr. Hough, and we know whereof we affirm.

The remainder of the statement in "the horn" consists of fulsome self-puffery, and a tirade of vile abuse of every man who is discomfiture in the city of Chicago, would be read in Charleston, and the men who have undertaken the task of breaking upthe best government in the world, and establishing a pro-sisvery depotism on its rains, would take new courage therefrom, and beemboldened to commit other acts of insults and aggression upon the Federal power and the rights of the peaceable chirges of the free States. If ever, a Republican triumph is demanded now. If ever the right arm of the Government needed the support of the people, this is the hour in which that support would be most welcome. If ever opportunity which should be embraced. We know not who will be named as the analidates of the party; but we do know hat the men selected will be unexceptionable—that they will be members of nelique or faction, and that they will be members of nelique or faction, and that they will be members of nelique or faction, and that they will be members of nelique or faction, and that they will be members of nelique or faction, and that they will be members of nelique or faction, and that they will be familied that their associates, carnest and we selicity down and the section of the secasion stripe, and that their associates, carnest and we selicity have been successed by surely mistaken, are provisional a making brigadiers thereof of Cola. Bragg and Beanregard, and appointing Col. Hardre colonel of its first regiment.

[From the Montgomery Mail.] misapprehension exists in the regard to the military organi

Many "crack" volunteer companies, not only from the Confederate States, but also from the Border States, have sought, independently, to be incurporated into this "provisional army;" but the rule is inflexible, and unless they are offered by some one of the governors of the Confederate States, upon a requision from the war department, they are not received. Practically, the "provisional army" is about tull; the patriotism of the people was fully up to the mark of the needs of the country.

Memorandum: That in confemplation of law surgeous and assistant surgeons of the volunteer and State army troops, turned over to the confederacy to make part of the "provisional army" are not "officers," and they are therefore not retained. The deficiency is supplied by appointing (temporarily) acting assistant surgeons of each of the surgeons of each of the provisional army" are not "officers," and they are plained by appointing (temporarily) acting assistant surgeons of the provisional army are not "cofficers," and they are plained and approach to the provisional army are not companily acting assistant surgeons to company the provisional army are not company the provisional army appears the provisional army are not company to the provisional army army to the provisional army are not company to the provisional army are not company to the provisional army are not company to the provisional army army to the provision Memorandura, also: That the single slight exception to the rule, that the component organizations of the "provisional army," derived as aforesald from the several States, remain as when mustered into the service of the Confederate States—is, that independent or isolated companies will be consolidated into sattalions or regiments. This, of course, is indispensable. Another point about the "provisional army:" Its surgeons and assistant surceons are only temporary appointees, acting as such while the service may require them.

The regular army of the Confederacy is entirely distinct from the "provisional." It is not yet organized. The officers of only two regiments have yet been appointed; soon, the officers of four other regiments will be appointed. The organization is very similar to that of the United States army. As soon as appointed, many of the Officers of the regular army will be ordiced to the recruiting service. And it is in this way only that the regular army will be ordiced to the recruiting service. And it is in this way only that the regular army will be ordiced to the recruiting service. And it is in this way only that the regular army will be ordiced to the recruiting service. To the Editors of the Ereoing Post:

I got's copy of your paper from a friend last evening, and read your remerks on this post and the companies of men who have recently arrived here. I was pleased to see that you were willing to treat us justly in reference to our action in fexas. You state that the men were not infected by General lavings's treason. This is true in every particular.

When the news reached us at Fort Brown, a tartill of indignation ran through every tolder's breast, and nothing but respect for some who had been our superior officer, or rather respect for the office he had filled, prevented a loud expression of our surprise and contempt. As it was, we could not be prevented from talking among ourselves.

One of our men, who was considered a sort of spokesman and leader among us, one who is as brave as allow, and true as steel, was grooming his horses when he first heard of it. Some one-sold him that General Twiggs had surreades ed the goveanment troops and prop-

Some one told him that General Twiggs had surrendered the goveanment troops and property. He turned on his informant and said i General Twiggs may aurrender the property to the traitors; he may give himself ap; he can take my horses here, but he can't make me or any other true Union man surrender." There was no audible response to this, but the looks of every one who heard him were expressive of their determination to serve that government faithfully into whose survice they had voluntarily entered, and whose bread they were eating.

government faithfully into whose service they had voluntarily entered, and whose bread they were eating.

Some of the papers which I saw in Washington have stated that the troops retraining in Terna were in a state of insubordination. Becieve me, sira, this is wrong! I had opportunition and conversation, and I know that the men felt ford, said were unwilling to strike a blow against their own officers. They may have had their grievance, and what soldier has not? But they knew they would not be better off as practisers of treason.

We had enough to do at Fort Brown to keep us from mischief. Each private of our company had two horses to feed and groom, and not a two of us had the "shakes," or chilis and fewer, so that we did not rust.

But I will not trespase on your space further, and will only ask in conclusion, that when the poor but faithful soldier is maligned, you will, as you have done before, protect his reputation by a truthful statement.

The North Carolina Quakers.

That portion of the Society of Friends who reside in North Carolina are now debating on the propriety of wholly withdrawing from the presence of slavery, and removing West. Thousands have already gone. I term that the impossibility of selling their property alone prevents immediate removal with many. They are unwilling o remain and rear their children surrounded by the demoralising influences of the institution. Its despotism compels them to be silent, though residing there a centrary, quiet and free from intermediding, they are becoming objects of surricise; they consequently make no presclytes, and in such a community do not increase in numbers. Indeed the opinion begins to prevail that their mission, as a religious people, is accomplished among the slaveholders—the door is closed, nothing more can be done by them—and it is time for them to retire. They have long since disappeared from South Carolina; and from Teunessee, where now only three monthly meetings axiat, they are rapidly removing. In North Carolina, their numbers are areasty. deness of writhing with agory when they draw their last breath.

These assemblage have heretofore been largely attended by the most emineat members of the profession from all parts of the nation, who have personal derived much pleasure from these gathering and at the same time the science of medicin has been influenced by the interchange of thought between those thus brought together We are sorry to hear that the Southern pression has made and the same time the science of the brought together when the control of the street when the street and the science of the street when the proposes the proposes. We are sorry to hear that the Southern press, both medical and political, views the proposed meeting it this place with dishryor, asserting that Chicago rests under the "odistm" of Republicanism, and predicting that no representatives will be present from the seceding, and but few from the border States. We fear that these opinions are but too well grounded, and trust that the physicians of the Republican North will put forth unwonted efforts in order that the meeting of the association in this eity may not fail behind those of former years in interest and respectability. The people of the eity should also exhibit to the strangers who may come among us, those strangers who may come among us, those strangers who may come among us, those trangers who may come among us, those at tentions and that politicase and hospitally for which on other other occasions they have merited and received so much praise.
